Embedded Systems Design

PUBLISHING SCHEDULE 2008

Embedded Systems Design Europe is the premier technical resource for embedded design engineers and engineering managers throughout Europe. The magazine highlights the significant design methodologies, strategies and new products engineers need to gain a competitive advantage.

Each issue carries a balance of how-to editorial material through feature articles, news and new products for designers responsible for defining systems, selecting the critical hardware and software components, building the systems, and integrating the hardware and firmware designs.

Embedded Systems Design Europe magazine evolves with the market, helping to keep European engineers at the forefront of their profession. As the demand for development in embedded products continues to grow, the demand on engineers intensifies. These designers need to source components, software, debug tools and other specialist equipment and Embedded Systems Design Europe magazine is where they go to do just that.

The quality editorial in Embedded Systems Design Europe guarantees that the magazine plays a pivotal role in designers' and developers' jobs, updating them on the latest technology and allowing them to make valued and informed buying decisions.

By working with our US sister title we can access the best information and articles worldwide. A companion to Embedded Systems Design Europe, Embedded.com is the global online authority for embedded designers and technical managers and this site plus the weekly Embedded Newsletter provide practical design techniques, daily industry news and new product updates, how-to technical features, and weekly columns and polls.
